CIVIL WAR BATTLE OF FRANKLIN

Enjoy this narrative tour of the Civil War Battle of Franklin. The Lotz house bears its own battle scars, including the charred indentation in the hardwood floor where a cannonball flew through the roof. The house served as a showplace for master woodworker Johann Lotz. See how both the house and the Lotz family were forever changed following the Battle of Franklin. The grounds are accessible by wheelchair, and the first floor of the Mansion is also wheelchair-accessible with a ramp to the side porch.

Enjoy lunch on your own in the Historic Downtown Franklin where there is a variety of restaurants. After lunch we will visit the Carnton & McGavock Confederate Cemetery.

The cemetery contains 1,500 graves and is the largest Confederate Cemetery in the United States.
